

Requested constructions are produced with the help of standard connection elements and chosen sigma Profile sections that momentum needed for the body of and Chassis at machine designs. There are some samples shown below;

According to the Designs the Chassis and bodies, the required momentum to be selected based on help of related Industrial Profile cuts and the Connection Parts to create a construction. Below are sample images

